A Bill Passed on Motion of Senator Dolph.

THE WAGON ROADS OF OREGON

Notes of Interest to the Northwest—Rose Cleveland's Opinions on Evening Dress—Another Talk with Powderly

SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Cullom called up his motion to make the interstate commerce bill the special order for March [illegible]

Platt would not object to the motion, but thought the senate should take up the bill [illegible] Washington [illegible] the president [illegible] should [illegible] disposed of [illegible] was agreed to.

Hoar called up his motion of yesterday to make the bankruptcy bill the special order for March [illegible] saying, however, that he did not expect to antagonize the interstate commerce bill. Hoar's motion was agreed to—yeas 33, nays 12.

Allison called up the urgent deficiency bill and the senate concurred with the house [illegible] items [illegible]

On motion of Dolph [illegible] the senate passed the bill [illegible] grant the Astoria & Winnemucca [illegible] right to [illegible] water courses.

The senate [illegible] resolutions [illegible]

Van Wyck [illegible] resolutions the following: "And in all such cases of removal the matter [illegible] confirmation shall [illegible]"

Sewell occupying the chair, remarked [illegible] would be printed and lie over.

Brown then took the floor in opposition to the report of the majority of the committee. He said it seemed to him that there was but one single question at issue between the president and the majority of the senate. That question was had the president without the advice and consent of the senate power to remove federal officers [illegible] Brown argued at length to show that the constitution conferred the power of removal on the president alone, and that as the constitution was supreme law, that settled the question, no matter how many acts of congress might have been passed in violation of it.

THE VIEWS OF SPOONER

Spooner took the floor in support of the majority report. He said he would make no attempt to disguise the fact or apologize for it that the fortunes of the republican party were very dear to him. He would not attempt to deny that he wished that the party might here and elsewhere reap every advantage which might be taken from the blunders and shortcomings, if any such there were, of this administration. Spooner read from the president's message the clause inviting the senate to the fullest scrutiny of nominations. [illegible] Spooner asked, mean that he was willing to give the senate all the information in his possession, or did he mean that he would make a partial presentation? Spooner then took up the question from a legal point of view and quoted from the constitution to show that the power of removal as well as appointment was in the president and senate acting together, and that what was in his sole discretion absolute was the power of suspension during recess of the senate.

Spooner still having the floor the senate went into executive session, and soon adjourned.

THE OREGON WAGON ROADS

Secretary Lamar Sends all the Information in his Possession to the House

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Secretary Lamar sent to the house to-day, in response to a resolution offered some time ago by Hermann, all the information that the interior department has in regard to land grant wagon roads in Oregon. The report of special agent Prosser, who was detailed by the interior department in 1880 to make a thorough examination of the work done by the Willamette Valley and Cascade Wagon Road company, states that the whole grant of land embraced 860,7[illegible] acres, of which [illegible] acres were patented to the company and [illegible] 004 acres still remain unpatented. Prosser says he went over the entire road and found that it was a shameful piece of work. He states that the company appropriated an old county road from Albany, where the military road begun, to a point four miles east of Sweet Home, a distance of thirty-six miles; that from that point east of Cache creek about sixty miles of passable road was built, except for want of many necessary bridges; and that from Cache creek to the eastern boundary of the state, 350 miles, the company only made a wagon track, building no bridges, making no grades and filling in no depressions. The report states that a single wagon was driven across the country and its marks were called a road.

No agent had been detailed to inspect The Dalles military road. The grant to that company consists of [illegible] 000 acres, of which [illegible] are patented, the rest remaining still unpatented.

Sparks states that although he has no reliable information in regard to the way the work was done, he is satisfied it was not properly performed from the short time the company took to make the road. The survey was begun April [illegible] and the road [illegible] miles long, was completed May [illegible] and twenty-five days later, and was accepted by the governor of Oregon in three sixty-three days from the time the survey began.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

WASHINGTON NOTES

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The house committee on elections to-day dismissed the petition asking that members of congress from California be unseated on the ground that the state had been reapportioned and that the members did not reside within their congressional districts.

The supervising architect recommends that a special appropriation be asked for the repair and preservation of the Boise City, Idaho, assay office of $ [illegible] 000.

The banking and currency committee of the house had a conference with Treasurer Jordan last night at his residence. The principal subject of discussion was as to the best means of keeping silver in circulation as long as possible. Jordan is in favor of making the banks the circulating agency instead of the treasury. He thought this would secure the [illegible]

The cabinet at its meeting to-day had under consideration the proposed abrogation of the treaty with the Hawaiian government.

HON. D. P. THOMPSON INTERVIEWED

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Hon. D. P. Thompson of Portland, one of the wealthiest men in Oregon, is in this city. He said to-day that the Oregon Short Line will be extended through Southeastern Oregon to the Willamette valley and thence to Portland, in connection with the Oregon & California road. This road would be built as soon as possible and open a great stretch of fine country in the southeastern part of the state. That country now has no outlet to market and is backward in development. Mr. Thompson said that Oregon is now enjoying great prosperity. He is of the opinion that the natural interests of the state will be largely and profitably developed within a year or two. Mr. Thompson is mentioned as a [illegible] probable republican nominee for governor of the state. He said that he was not seeking the honor, and that it was doubtful whether he would accept if it were tendered him.

THE PENSION [illegible] INVESTIGATION

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Senators Cullom (chairman), Harrison, [illegible] and Kenna of the sub-committee on expenditures of public moneys assembled at the committee room this evening to continue the examination of Commissioner Black. Expenditures [illegible] under Dudley, whose administration of the pension bureau is understood to have been the subject of the allegations in Commissioner Black's report, which gave rise to the investigation, was present.

Senator Harrison repeated his inquiry of the last meeting if the committee could furnish names and numbers in the cases which had been allowed or rejected on account of the politics of any claimant. Gen. Black, in reply, furnished a list [illegible] twenty cases, all of which he said came within the classes referred to. He said he would furnish in addition three or four hundred affidavits which the committee should have examined this list in support of his allegation that the pension office [illegible] political machine.

Commissioner Black said in answer to further inquiries that the list by no means comprised all the cases of the character referred to of which he had knowledge.

Having been examined in relation to a number of cases, not [illegible] Commissioner Black left the files in other cases on his list with the committee for examination, stipulating that [illegible] should be allowed to [illegible] Adjourned until Wednesday.

In fact the day of strikes is passed. I never ordered one in my life, and with two exceptions never failed in my efforts to meet employers for a settlement of difficulties with employes. I have just telegraphed Vice President Hoxie asking for a conference.

"What was the temper of the discussion to-day?"

THE STRIKE NEARING THE END

ST. LOUIS, March 18.—A general impression prevails here this evening that the Gould strike is nearing an end. The resumption in this city of [illegible] passenger traffic without interference by strikers is looked upon as a hopeful sign, and the partial re-establishment of freight traffic at other points is regarded in the same light. [illegible] Knights of Labor are jubilant over the [illegible] of Powderly's general master workman to confer with the dissatisfied Gould knights, and they express confidence that his efforts toward a settlement will result successfully and in their favor. This, together with the announcement that Receiver Sheldon of the Texas & Pacific has agreed to submit the question of the justice of the discharge of Hall at Marshall, Texas, to arbitration, warrants the belief that the strike is nearly at an end. The early suburban trains departed on time this morning, and the company expect no [illegible] opposition to the running of those trains.

A PROPOSITION BY THE RECEIVERS

NEW ORLEANS, March 18.—Gen. Sheldon said this afternoon that he considered the strike in a fair way to its end. The receivers, he said, will not arbitrate, but if Hall submits his case to the United States court, and the judge should decide that Hall was discharged without sufficient cause, then the receivers will reinstate him. If after all the strikers will not return to work, then the company will proceed, under protection of the court, to carry on its business. If the strikers will submit to the judge's decision, if it should be adverse to them, then of course the strike will end.

All trains, both passenger and freight, on this division of the Texas & Pacific are now running on their regular time.

A SUCCESSFUL STRIKE

CHICAGO, March 18.—Inter Ocean's Milwaukee special: The cigar makers assembly of the Knights of Labor to-day presented to every prominent manufacturer [illegible] a demand for an immediate advance of wages [illegible] per thousand. The cigar manufacturers signed the scale, and agreed that all employes shall become Knights [illegible] No girls under 16 years are to be [illegible] When men are out of work [illegible] women are to be permitted to learn the trade. It is also agreed that when men are out of employment a woman must [illegible] charged if her husband is at work. Eight hours is to constitute a day's labor, commencing May 1.

CLOAK MAKERS ON A STRIKE

NEW YORK, March 18.—All the cloak makers in the city, numbering 1,000, are on a strike. They do not ask for increased wages, but merely demand that the contract system be abolished so that they may deal directly with the firms themselves.

ROSE CLEVELAND AND EVENING DRESS

She Says There is an Appropriate, Beautiful and Modest Mean

NEW YORK, March 18.—A Boston dispatch to the Tribune quotes a letter written by Miss Cleveland to a lady friend and printed in the Times, saying in part: "Newspaper statements with regard to my modest dress, and its influence in encouraging a shocking scarcity of waist and sleeve in other women's dress, have been sent to me for several days with accompanying comments, but always anonymously, so that I have been unable to reply, had I deemed an anonymous communication honest enough to justify an honest response, and that has not always been the case. I approve of evening dress which shows the neck and arms. I do not approve of any dress which shows the bust. Between the neck and the bust there is always a line to be drawn, and it is as clear to the most frivolous society woman as to anybody else. This line [illegible] any fashionable woman [illegible] evening dress need never be immodest. If it is so, it is because she prefers it so. It is wholly false so far as I have observed, that [illegible] shocking scarcity of waist and sleeves marks the gowns of society women. This is sadly and only [illegible] true of a few society women, and [illegible] is indeed shocking, unseating, revolting and [illegible] the strictest demand, all in on the score of morals [illegible] health and every other [illegible] all [illegible] and men should conspire to prosecute [illegible] There is need of very few words in this subject and no argument. Any American woman can wear the waist of her evening dress up to the lobes of her ears if she likes. There is no [illegible] to confound her appearance in a low one. She can also contrive her dress so that the exposure of her person will [illegible] social ethics and [illegible] well are [illegible] Between the two there is an appropriate, beautiful and modest mean which all [illegible] if they will follow.

THANKS FOR THE LINE

NEW YORK, March 18.—The Telegram says editorially: "It is gratifying to note that Miss Cleveland considers that fashionable women should [illegible] the line somewhere in evening dress and that they should not [illegible] their morals or hygienic laws for the sake of fashion. Miss Cleveland is a very sensible lady, and can speak fondly and wisely [illegible] this subject because of her position in society and because of her acknowledged [illegible] We trust she will set a good example hereafter to ladies in Washington. DEATH OF AN HEROIC WOMAN

SCITUATE, Mass., March 18.—Miss Abigail Bates died yesterday aged 89 years. She was one of the two heroines who during the war of 1812 drove the British forces from this harbor by concealing themselves in the bushes and playing vigorously upon fifes and drums, thereby leading the enemy to believe that a large force was ready to receive them.

Deliberately Making a Confidant of Inspector Byrnes and Implicating Other Aldermen—The Detective's Story

NEW YORK, March 18.—Alderman Jaehne was arrested at the City hall at noon to-day and taken at once to police headquarters, charged with bribery. This [illegible] district attorney [illegible] inquiry was laid [illegible]

A SUCCESSFUL TRAP

[illegible] about six months ago I met Jaehne [illegible] city hall, and by way of [illegible] conversation [illegible] going on between some women over property left by Alderman Kenney. Jaehne [illegible]

"Yes," said he, "he was a d—d sucker buying property for his money. What I get I have in such a way that I can protect myself."

He talked quite freely, but said nothing definite. Last Monday a week ago we met again and before we had parted he had given me a good deal of information in a general way. Things were [illegible] and when I found District Attorney Martine and Judge Gildersleeve at the Manhattan club last Sunday night I talked the situation over with them. They thought it quite probable that conviction for bribery could be had [illegible] already mentioned to work upon [illegible] advised me to have Jaehne make statements where they could be corroborated. To that end I sent for Jaehne on Tuesday, inviting him to a confidential chat at headquarters. He [illegible] disturbed and could not talk in [illegible] appointed Wednesday night at my house for the meeting, and Alderman Jaehne [illegible] As he was going out he turned around and said that these aldermen were scared to death and some one might tell them that he was [illegible] from other headquarters.

"What shall I say if they do?" he asked.

"Say you have been up to see a friend in the [illegible] department," I said, and he went away.

HE TELLS EVERYTHING

"He came on Wednesday, and in the course of [illegible] interview lasting for hours he told me all about his share in the Broadway railroad steal. I had two of my men posted where they could hear everything that was said, without being seen. Jaehne said he got $[illegible] for his vote on the Broadway franchise. He told me how he got it and how much he had got for other railroad franchises, how the same were paid and much [illegible] He named other aldermen who had been bribed and volunteered the information that three of them who had invested in real estate [illegible] business in which the money might show on [illegible] had since the senate investigation began had a certain lawyer go over their books and fix them so that it would appear all right when their turn should come. He said who the [illegible] was, but I am not going to tell you now. I shall not tell you either in detail just what he said, and what he told about, that will appear in proper season. Jaehne said [illegible] during the interview that if things got much hotter he was going to skip [illegible] He thought I was his good friend. I thought enough of him any [illegible] to have him looked after closely that night. Up till 10 o'clock this morning detectives were on his track all the time. At that hour I made a report to the district attorney and received a warrant for his arrest. While I was in Mr. Martin's I saw Jaehne going through City Hall park followed by two detectives. I sent Detective Reilly out with the warrant and they arrested Jaehne and took him to police headquarters."

Jaehne was seen by an associated reporter at about 6 o'clock to-night, in a saloon at the corner of Varick and Houston streets, but he refused to be interviewed.

Full Particulars of the Killing of Twelve Negroes at Carrollton

NEW ORLEANS, March 18.—A special from Winona, Miss., to the Times-Democrat gives the following particulars of the circumstances leading to the tragedy enacted at Carrollton, Miss., yesterday. Some months ago Robert Moore, a young man from Le Flore county, went to Carrollton. There he met Ed Brown (colored), with whom he had an altercation, and the negro smeared and [illegible] on him molasses which he carried in a jug. J. M. Liddell, Jr., of Greenwood, a friend of Moore's, happened to meet Brown and made some allusions to his treatment of Moore. Brown gave him impudence and Liddell started at him, but was prevented by bystanders from attacking him. The negro then went and armed himself, and induced others likewise. They stationed themselves on the street, partly concealing themselves behind trees, and when Liddell came out after supper from the hotel he saw them and asked what they meant, whereupon Ed Brown responded it was none of his d—d business. At that Liddell struck at Ed Brown with his fist, and Ed and Charles Brown (his brother) both simultaneously fired upon Liddell, the ball striking the elbow of his right arm. After this time some fifteen or twenty shots were fired from different quarters. Liddell pulled his pistol and hit Ed Brown in the abdomen, and received one shot in the fleshy part of his leg. Charles Brown was shot in the shoulder.

THE TRAGEDY

The men who had taken part were brought before the mayor forthwith, received an examination and were bailed to appear before the next circuit court. Threats were continually made by the Brown brothers that they would have Jim Liddell's blood, that they had five double-barreled shot guns loaded seven fingers deep and would kill the first man who put his foot on their ground.

On the 12th inst. [illegible] made affidavit against James Liddell and others, including some of the best citizens of the place, and men who knew nothing of the difficulty, charging them with assault with attempt to murder in the present difficulty. Previous to the opening of the trial yesterday Brown boasted on the street that he had his body guard and would shoot the first man that made a move in his direction.

The case was called at noon, when the courthouse was immediately filled with negroes who stationed themselves around and about the Brown brothers. The attorneys were proceeding with the case when there suddenly appeared about 100 white men, all well armed. Perceiving their entrance, Ed Brown drew his pistol and fired in the direction of Liddell, who was between his attorneys, and thereupon the firing became general. Ten were instantly killed and two others have since died. Some escaped by jumping through the windows a distance of at least twenty feet from the ground.

THE COURT HOUSE RIDDLED

The room was completely filled with smoke. The judge's bench is on the north side of the room and benches facing it are towards the south. It is a very large courtroom with windows all around. On the south wall were counted 150 shot holes in the wall of the passage leading down stairs; ten shot holes, and in the bench thirty shot holes. One shot struck a north window sash and glanced into the wall. Five other shots show on the north wall from the direction of the benches. [illegible] of blood were on the floor of the court room.

The mob then left as quietly as they came to the general impression is that this will end the trouble. Heretofore a few of the negroes killed were constantly creating bad feeling and led other [illegible] peaceable inclined to produce strife between the whites and blacks. The good people of Carrollton deprecate all this, and regret that [illegible] innocent colored people were drawn into the fuss.

Following is a list of the killed: Andrew Robinson, Charles Brown, Ed Brown, Joe Lang, John Moten, Simon Lane, Jim Harrison, Amos Mat[illegible], Scott Moore, French Hughes, [illegible] and Jim Johnson.

Fully as many were wounded. One colored man rolled himself out of one of the west windows, falling on the brick pavement outside, but got up and made his escape unhurt. As he was getting out three shots were fired at him, two of which struck the window sill and one went through the glass.

All is quiet now. The principal leaders of the gang were Charles and Ed Brown, who were amongst the killed. It is impossible to get any one to state the name of any of the persons in the mob, and it will be very difficult to ascertain them, as nobody in the excitement took notice of any persons who entered the court house. No arrests have as yet been made.

A MOTHER'S TERRIBLE CRIME

CINCINNATI, March 18.—A short time ago Squire Bohrman of Avondale, a suburb of Cincinnati, lost a suit involving $[illegible]00. This so preyed upon the mind of his wife that it is supposed she became deranged. This morning Bohrman heard a noise in his wife's bedroom, in which his sons also slept, and attempted to enter, but found the door locked. He forced an entrance and found his wife dead, with her throat cut with a razor. His son Albert, 14 years old, was also dead, with his throat cut, and another son, Arthur, was severely, if not fatally, wounded. Arthur was able to say that his mother came to him some time in the night and told him to go to sleep, that he did fall asleep and was awakened by a blow on his head. He ran to the door and found it locked. He tried to remove the lock, but she struck him again. Then he heard his father at the door, but could not give an alarm, and then his mother killed herself.

Seven persons were drowned and suits for damages were begun by the relatives against the two boats. During the past six years an immense amount of litigation has been carried on, the matter being fought through the Canadian courts and the state and United States courts, one suit reaching the supreme court. There were in all forty-eight suits pending when the settlement was concluded. The surplus of the company after certain previous obligations are paid will be paid over to plaintiffs. Suits in the various courts were discontinued this morning.

THE WHIPPING POST SUGGESTED

PHILADELPHIA, March 18.—The Times says editorially: "The disgraceful business of prize fighting is getting so beastly that some sure and severe punishment will be necessary to put a stop to it. It is everywhere acknowledged in these days that the whipping post is the most feared form of punishment known to the criminal classes, and as the whole aim of prize fighting is infliction of physical chastisement, whipping for prize fighting would be a very appropriate wind up to every such undertaking."

RAILROAD NOTES

CLINTON AT SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—Reports received from the East relative to the proposed action of the Pacific Mail and the Southern Pacific company [illegible] among railroad men, it being their opinion that the steamship company cannot compete with the railroads at present rates except at the cost of payment of money out of past earnings to meet expenses. It is believed that the Pacific Mail will simply reduce its rates to make them, all things considered, equal to railroad rates and will not seek to enter the fight. This is believed to be their true policy, and that any other course will militate against them when the railroad war is ended and they again ask for a monthly stipend.

HUNTINGTON MEANS WAR.

CHICAGO, March 18.—A prominent local stock firm received a telegram to-day saying Mr. Huntington had gone west, and declined all further negotiations in the Transcontinental matter. He has bought four steamers and will put them in active competition with the Pacific Mail in the California coasting trade. A cut of $40 in passenger rates between New York and San Francisco is expected, and the Pacific Mail say they will cut that rate in two if necessary. In a telegram to another firm, President Crocker of the Central Pacific says the [illegible] steamers will be put on immediately.

THE PACIFIC MAIL

NEW YORK, March 18.—The Pacific Mail directors held a meeting and voted to take freight at any rates, and to bring it hereafter all the way from Japan and China in their own vessels to New York, instead of giving consignments to transcontinental roads from San Francisco. On Saturday the subsidy contract between the Pacific Mail company and the transcontinental railroads expires. Then the Pacific Mail people will play their trump card, offering to carry passengers from New York to San Francisco for $40 first class. The Pacific Mail promise to reduce this 50 per cent further if need be.

DENVER, March 18.—The New Orleans railroad was sold at auction this morning under foreclosure of the mortgage held by the first mortgage bondholders. J. Sidney Brown, trustee for the Mercantile Trust company of Brooklyn, purchased the road for $3[illegible]. It is generally understood that the sale is a step in the organization of the road under the name of the Denver, Texas & Gulf, and will bring to an end the [illegible] several negotiations for extension of the road in connection with the Fort Worth & Denver City railroad, at the Canadian river, giving a through line from here to New Orleans [illegible] Galveston.

CHARGED WITH STRIKING A WOMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—Calvin [illegible] Somers, who was made notorious in connection with the Treadwell guardianship contest, was defendant in the police court this morning for assault and battery on Mrs. Helen M. Henderson in the witness room at the new City hall yesterday forenoon. Several witnesses were examined this forenoon for the prosecution to show that after Somers's exit from the witness room Mrs. Henderson partially closed the door to prevent being stared at by loafers in the corridor. Somers turned on his heel, and after bursting the door open pushed complainant down upon a settee and struck her in the breast with his clinched fist. Defendant swore this afternoon that he simply pushed the door open when it was hurriedly closed upon him, that Mrs. Henderson fell accidentally on the settee, and was not struck at all. Advices from Washington are awaited with much impatience.

The case of George B. Warren, clerk in the Palace hotel, charged with embezzling $1000 which Lieut. George W. Graydon had trusted to him while the latter was in China, was dismissed to-day. This Warren could not do, as he had used the money.

PORTLAND, FRIDAY MAR. 19 1886.

THE EFFECT AT OREGON CITY

There is a situation at Oregon City which shows in a very practical way the industrial effects of Chinese agitation. At Oregon City the movement was carried to its destined conclusion—the Chinese were driven from the town in a body and have not been permitted to return. Of the manner of their eviction we need not speak at this time, for it is with the business aspect of the case and not with its moral and legal phases that we have in this article to deal. The evicted Chinese, about forty in number, were operatives in the Oregon City woolen mills, being employed in connection with three or four times their own number of white men and women. There was no protest on the part of the latter against working with the Chinese, for the two classes of labor were employed in different departments and were not in the remotest sense rivals. On the contrary, the work of one department required co-operation of the other, so that the white operatives were benefited directly by the activity and efficiency of the Chinese. For many years the factory was operated successfully under this division of labor. It has been the productive center of the community, employing nearly 150 white operatives, using large quantities of fuel, affording a local market for wool—in these various ways disbursing a vast amount of money and reaching with its benefits every business interest and nearly every inhabitant of Oregon City.

While the factory at Oregon City has been operated continuously, it has not paid large dividends and the closest possible management has been required to make it yield a reasonable profit. The conditions of its business, as to the marketing of its product, have never been favorable and it has been compelled, while producing in a state where labor is high to sell in states where the prices of manufactured goods are low and in competition with factories operated at less cost for labor. Much of the time the margin has been so small that the amount saved by the employment of Chinese instead of white men has been the whole profit. If it had been necessary to employ white men altogether the factory would have been compelled to shut down at various times in the past. The employment of a few Chinese (only about one-fourth of the whole force of the factory) has enabled the establishment to run almost continuously and made possible the employment of a large number of white men and women. But it must not be understood that the Chinese 'degraded' labor in the sense charged by the agitators, for they received higher wages than are paid to white operatives of the same grade in the eastern states.

This was the situation when the "agitation" reached Oregon City. The proprietors of the mills were employing thirty-nine Chinese, intending to exchange them for whites as as soon as reliable men could be secured and trained technically. But the agitators were not content, and drove the Chinese from their employment. With great forbearance the mill proprietors made no attempt at retaliation, but undertook to continue operations with such a crew of green hands as they could pick up in the places of the evicted Chinese. And ever since the mill has been running in lame-duck fashion. It now operates four days in the week, a lay over of two days being necessary to enable the department in which the green hands are employed to catch up with the other departments operated by the old hands. Thus, nearly a hundred and fifty people are forced to be idle two days of each week and made to suffer the loss of one-third of their weekly income. But this is not the worst. The establishment is running at a dead loss, its proprietors report, and there is danger of its being shut down for an indefinite period. The market for cloths is dull and the conditions of operating here are [illegible] Oregon City is in danger of losing her chief industry through the foolish and criminal action of her scrib[illegible] element. Already business is dull and the town is under the severe grind of hard times.

THE EFFECT ON INDUSTRY AND BUSINESS

One of the untoward results of the [illegible] agitation in progress here and throughout the Northwest is the discouragement and depression of business. It has brought industrial enterprise to a stand, and has greatly checked mercantile activity. Not for years has there been so much hesitation about putting money into undertakings whose success must depend largely on employment of labor. And the same thing is true as to other investments. Men who were inquiring about real estate, with a view to making purchases and improvements thereon, now say they will wait. Many who intended to erect buildings have suspended the purpose for the present, and will wait until there is a better prospect for business. It is useless to try to conceal the fact that the growing confidence with which the year opened has during the last six weeks received a severe check. And there is no wonder. For the question comes up, whether a mob is to rule the country or not, and whether business is to go on in its natural channels, or is to be subject to interruptions and disturbances that will virtually kill it.

Very frequently during the last two or three years THE OREGONIAN has complained of the lack of enterprise here. It has at times spoken in terms of some severity of those who would not invest money in undertakings that would employ labor, build up industry, give manufactures a start, secure for Portland a basis as a manufacturing city and promote by such policy the general development of the country. Some of those who have supposed themselves to be objects of this criticism have, within the last two weeks, taken occasion to address notes to this office, saying, in substance: "Perhaps you will now be able to understand better why it is that more investments have not been made in manufacturing enterprises. The greatest drawback is want of labor that can be depended on. You can't expect men to invest their money under conditions that will make it dead capital, or result in positive loss. They will let their capital lie idle first, for they know that even if it is not earning anything it will at least be available when wanted."

We have heard of quite a number of men who have come from the East during the past few months, with the idea of ascertaining what the conditions were here that might make investments of capital in manufacturing industries hopeful, and they say, one and all, that the East will continue to manufacture the greater part of the goods we consume till the wages expected for labor at [illegible] the profits expected from capital alike come down about the Eastern level. Only yesterday a heavy manufacturer of Troy, N. Y., whose specialty is linen yarns, in a conversation in this office said he was astonished to find all this outcry about Chinese labor here when wages were still so much higher on this coast than on the other. One would think that Chinese competition, of which so much has been heard, had cut wages here down to pauper rates, whereas in fact, wages in every class of labor were much higher than in the East, where there are no Chinese. But people there are willing to work and expect to work steadily. Here, the spirit of restlessness and of adventure still prevails, and many still have hopes of obtaining sudden fortunes somehow, and cannot settle themselves to the small and steady economies of life.

It cannot be supposed that our remote Northwest will ever make much growth in industry and wealth till investments of capital can be induced; yet every form of "agitation" that threatens disorder deters investments and causes capital to withdraw or hide away. "No," said a capitalist, when asked recently if he was going on with an undertaking which he had been contemplating, "I shall wait for this thing to settle down. I will put nothing more at the mercy of a communistic mob."

FARMING, PRESENT AND PROSPECTIVE

Notes from different parts of the state show that in the face of a limited market and low prices, farmers are plodding along, making some improvements, living within their means and making some effort to diversify the products of their lands so that they may not be entirely at the mercy of a stagnant wheat market.

Fall grain, of which the usual acreage, at least was sown has had a favorable winter, and in consequence is full of promise. Fruit has been kept back by the seasonable March weather, until all danger of being coaxed forward to suffer from April frosts has disappeared, and there is no doubt of a good crop. Hundreds of orchards show the judicious use of the pruning hook. The prospect is not good for an especially abundant crop of fruit in some localities, but it is well known that the "off fruit year" in Oregon means an excellent quality of fruit, while with rare exceptions the supply is ample.

The hop area is not likely, in the face of the experience of the past two years to be increased, but the acreage already planted will be in most instances properly cared for. Already the hardy, vigorous plants are sending up thousands of shoots showing the new lease of life that the winter has given them. In some localities the matter of competing with Iowa and Illinois for supplying our own markets with pork, bacon and lard is receiving attention and with it comes the question of hog feed. Experiment has shown that peas are valuable for this purpose. They have been found to yield well and it requires but little care to raise and save the crop.

Fruit-raising is absorbing much attention in Southern Oregon. A number of Eastern people have been attracted to this section with the view of engaging in this industry, and many acres are being planted in grapes, figs, nectarines, peaches and apricots, with a certainty of a fine yield of these fruits. Fruit growers already established there will be able to compete with California in this market in a short time in these lines. The experiment of raising melons for this market proved largely successful last year, and this year it will not only be repeated, but increased. The crops of that section will also be diversified by the growing of corn, broom corn and sorghum, all of which ripen in good season and yield well.

In Polk and Linn counties some attention is being paid to the establishment of creameries. Inducements have been offered for persons of experience to engage in such business. If properly supported by the farmers in any of the valley counties this industry could be made to pay. Practical experience, together with the intelligent support of farmers, in the way of properly sheltering their cows, raising the feed that will insure the best flavor to butter, and the most steady flow of milk, and persistence in furnishing the supply are the simple requisites of success. Flaxseed has been made an important crop, to the extent that there has been a demand for it by the oil mills at Salem, but it is believed that there is no encouragement to enlarge upon this crop with the limited market that at present exists in the state.

There is plainly a disposition on the part of many farmers to make the most of their resources, and do the best that they can in the face of all discouragements. Remote from the world's markets, with high rates of labor, small resident population and no manufacturing industries to invite a non-producing (agriculturally speaking) population, it is impossible to grow wheat with profit. Every man in the state who has hired hands to help raise wheat knows that this is true. Mortgages on many farms add their lightning testimony in support of this fact. From present indications, owing chiefly to the fact that [illegible] agitators have demoralized the labor element here, capital will invest very slowly and cautiously in this state, and it will be many years before an industrial population that accompanies manufacturing interests will [illegible] ready [illegible] Under the circumstances, present and immediately prospective, there [illegible] that Oregon farmers [illegible] pretty well if they maintain their [illegible] living and keep [illegible] there is little left to be desired.

The report of the commissioner of education for the year 1884-85, under head of "Superior Instruction for Women," notes the fact that every year shows a slight increase in the number of young women [illegible] higher courses [illegible] colleges [illegible] higher standards. Regarding the physical effect of higher education upon women, learned authority is reported as stating that college education is physically beneficial, and that "college statistics show an average of health among women students, higher than among women at large." To this is added the testimony that the observation of every intelligent person corroborates that "statistics show an average of health among American women that is pitifully low, and that educational institutions that admit women to their benefits ought to be the first to take measures against this dangerous deterioration of the physique."

The committee on commerce strongly recommends the passage of bills establishing new life saving stations at exposed and dangerous points on the Pacific coast. The record of the life saving service of the United States is a glorious one, and reports of the past winter's work will add largely to the grand chapter already presented in the rescue of life and property from the "dread sweep of the down streaming seas." This record is an unanswerable argument in favor of the reasonable extension of the service, and certainly there is no place of more importance in connection with this extension than Point Adams, at the mouth of the Columbia river.

The girl who hangs herself because forbidden to go to the skating rink, and the boy who shoots himself because the "rink girl" smiles upon the other fellow, unwittingly save their friends a world of anxiety. Trouble that ends with the payment of an undertaker's bill is preferable to the trouble that waits upon dishonor, disgrace and folly.

ALL PLAIN ENOUGH

The purpose of the senate is either to obtain from the president a statement that he has made removals for political or party reasons, or to get hold of papers that would show such to be the case. Yet this has not been distinctly avowed. The purpose of the president has been to avoid an admission that he has made removals for political or party reasons, and to prevent the senate from getting at the papers which would show that he has done so. This is the nature of the controversy between the senate and the executive.

But the efforts made on both sides are needless. The whole matter is just as well understood by the country as if both president and senate had made full avowals. The president will not send the papers to the senate, knowing that they would show fully to the country that in spite of his promises not to do such things great numbers of removals have been made wholly on political and partisan grounds, while the senate knowing that the president has done much of this but that he has notwithstanding done much less of it than was demanded by his party and expected by all parties, refuses to give him credit for what he has done to arrest the course of the partisan spoils system.

Senators continue to talk from day to day on the subject but throw no new light upon it. It is, in fact, a profitless controversy. Both sides might as well make candid statements and end it, instead of trying to avoid admissions of leading facts. The country understands it fully, and this contest for partisan advantage will do no party any good. The very things the senate and executive try to conceal, or to avoid admitting, are just as well understood by the country as if the fullest admissions had been made.

Here and there a person is heard to say, in speaking of the "agitation" and its consequences: "O this is nothing but a fight among the newspapers, and they are responsible for it." An absurd remark. There is no competition among newspapers that could make a 'fight' among them. Of the dozen papers or more published in Portland, daily, weekly and Sunday, but one takes the side of the 'agitators,' and that paper is in no other paper's way. As matter of business it doesn't concern any other paper whether that paper is published or not. But it does concern the community whether lawlessness has an organ or not. As for THE OREGONIAN, it knows well enough that some other daily paper will always be published here. For twenty years one and another have been constantly doing it, or trying to [illegible]. The effort will be continued by one or another of course. Sometimes the competition has been severe. Now, it is nothing. A feebler paper than the one now making the experiment—a paper less a newspaper and less sought as such—could not be imagined. Consequently there is nothing in its position as a business concern to cause a "newspaper war." THE OREGONIAN hopes its publication will be continued. Should it disappear, somebody presently might start a newspaper that would be a competitor in business. THE OREGONIAN publishes a Sunday edition. The Mercury and Welcome are Sunday newspapers. If there were any competition to produce a "newspaper war" it would be here. This disturbance, then, is not "a fight among the newspapers." It is the result of organized lawlessness. Of this lawlessness a single one of the many papers published here is the recognized organ and this concerns the public quite as much as it does the other newspapers, THE OREGONIAN included.

A man of observation and experience in the Oregon grain trade is of the opinion, says the Willamette Farmer, that our farmers "should make grass answer all of its best uses in raising meat and stock," and adds: "The people of Oregon should depend as little as possible on foreign markets and try to develop as much as possible a home market. The farmer must produce a variety and have something for sale all the time. No man can profitably grow grain and pay wages to do it; he can only grow what he can do with his own labor."

It seems that we were entirely right in supposing that agitator Hanson would find the people of Yamhill county too decent and too much occupied with attending to their proper business to listen to such as he. The McMinnville Reporter says: "Agitation ceased in this city on the anti coolie lay out last Thursday, and so did the supposed agitator. He left no evidence of the fact that he came here to organize a gang of disorganizers. He received several well meaning rebukes."

The Oregon City Enterprise is a brave newspaper. It is doing strong work against the ku klux, and declares it will go on with the same whether three or three hundred stop it.

THE MOB AT THE COURT HOUSE

New Northwest

The mass meeting of citizens called at the court house by Mayor Gates on Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the present unsettled condition of affairs and devising means to check the growing tendency toward lawlessness showed the length of insolence to which an irresponsible crowd of men will go unless promptly checked by the strong hand of authority.

By a prearranged plan the [illegible] court house was packed long before the time of calling the meeting to order by the anti-Chinese agitators and their followers [illegible] the law abiding citizens at whose instigation the meeting was called. And such a gathering! It was a howling, hissing, cat-calling mob—a rabble in which could be detected here and there the lonesome countenance of some responsible [illegible] who having come early and obtained a seat was unable to work his way out. It was [illegible] posed of the same element which made itself officious at the polls in opposition to the rights of women at the election two years ago, and showed the same blatant tyranny [illegible] the rights and opinions of others that was characteristic of the election [illegible] in this county [illegible] portions of the state on that [illegible] After calling to the chair a democrat [illegible] who is popularly supposed to want to be [illegible] mayor but who [illegible] consider [illegible] slipped in the hall by presiding at such a gathering the meeting proceeded to adopt [illegible] lutions which sifted down are an [illegible] the anti-Chinese agitation and the [illegible] boycott of THE OREGONIAN. [illegible] not [illegible] who [illegible] taxpayer [illegible] After [illegible] acting this business the [illegible] which had evidently been prepared be[illegible] the mass meeting adjourned [illegible] such a gathering it was not without its [illegible] ment of a fight which took place in the [illegible] the hall because some citizen had the [illegible] to protest against the mob's action.

Finding it impossible to obtain a [illegible] Mayor Gates [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] to the [illegible] of [illegible] community, the [illegible] and disgrace already [illegible] danger [illegible] and [illegible] to protect the rights of a class of foreigners who are here under a national treaty and to maintain the fundamental principles of liberty and humanity as laid down by the founders of the republic at the sacrifice of their property and their lives [illegible] instructing the mayor to appoint a committee of fifteen to consult with the authorities and adopt such lawful measures as may be necessary under the circumstances for [illegible] peace and quiet.

The action of the anti-Chinese crowd in taking possession of the [illegible] room and boldly [illegible] the citizens meeting was an outrage. It was un-American tyranny [illegible] menace to law and order and worst of all to the right of free speech. Still it [illegible] without [illegible] too. It has shown [illegible] and the better class of citizens generally just where they stand [illegible] the determined insolence of the lawless [illegible] who have been [illegible] outrages in this county. And as [illegible] who opposed [illegible] to shoulder with this same mob [illegible] ball box a taste of their own medicine. They now have a full understanding of the [illegible] mob rule and it is hoped the lesson will [illegible] upon them.

No one could stand at the bar of that [illegible] and face the vicious sullen crowd that filled it without realizing the great gravity of the situation. It furnished the strongest possible plea for a determined stand in the support of law and also for the enfranchisement of the intelligent women of the state that they may aid their husbands and brothers in voting down [illegible] If women could thus express their views there would be less pandering to the lawless classes by political demagogues who would fear women's rebuke at the polls.

Every Man must Show his Hand

Oregon City Enterprise

We have said time and again that persons who did not speak out against the late kuklux raid in our town would find that the men who would go in the night and deprive a Chinaman of his rights would not hesitate to deprive a white man of his rights if they thought they could be successful, and we have been derided for taking so solemn a view of this matter. Therefore, we again say to the people of this town and country that there is an element of lawlessness among us that [illegible] chief bent, and every man that does not wish to be classed in that [illegible] must show his hand. There are times in which no compromise can be made. You are law-abiding or you are not. Show your hand.

M W. FECHHEIMER'S WILL

The last will and testament of the late M W Fechheimer was admitted to probate yesterday. It is a somewhat lengthy document, the principal provisions of which are as follows:

To his partner Henry Ach [illegible] he bequeaths [illegible] his extensive and valuable law library, which is one of the finest in the state.

He makes bequests of sums ranging from $300 to [illegible] to each of the following societies: German [illegible] society, Hebrew Benevolent society, British [illegible] society, Good Samaritan and St Vincent [illegible] society, [illegible] hospitals and the Hebrew orphan [illegible] of San Francisco. He gives the interest to him accruing under his father's or mother's will or as their heir at law to his surviving heirs at law (a brother and sister) the same as if he had never existed.

He gives to his wife in lieu of dower the lot and lots where she resides and all the household furniture and ornaments in and about the premises.

All the rest and residue of his property, real and personal, he devises to Henry Failing, Wm. M [illegible] and Uriah E Arnold in trust to take charge [illegible] sell or dispose of as they may deem best. They are to pay the income from the property or if sold from the proceeds thereof to his widow quarterly while she remains unmarried, until his youngest child attains the age of [illegible] years, or until she would have attained such age if she die before that time. In the event of her remarrying before the youngest child [illegible] such age the trustees are to pay to her such amount quarterly as they may deem sufficient to educate and maintain his children.

When the youngest child attains or would have attained the age of [illegible] years all property in the hands of or in possession of said trustees is to be divided among his wife and three children equally, share and share alike, provided the wife be then unmarried. If she shall have remarried the property is to be divided between the three children. INSANE LADY TRAVELER.—On the passenger train which passed through this city bound west on Sunday, says the Spokane Falls Review, was a tall well dressed splendid looking lady who was the center of attraction in the coach. She would intently watch any passenger that might be in conversation with a neighbor and then jump up, grab the unsuspecting victim around the neck and vehemently declare that she wanted her side of the story heard, that they were after her but she would yet escape them. [illegible] Sprague the attention of Superintendent Weymouth was called to the case and that gentleman had her removed from the cars and placed in charge of Deputy Sheriff Maloney of Lincoln county who took her to his home and carefully guarded the unfortunate lady. She came from St Paul and was on the way to Portland and it soon became evident that she was not only a lady of culture but highly educated. She was provided with ample means, but in her most lucid moments firmly refused to give any account of herself or information that might lead to communication with her friends. Superintendent Weymouth telegraphed to St Paul hoping to hear from her friends and provide for the unfortunate lady. Her case excited profound sympathy from all who met her and it is to be hoped that she may be taken in charge of by some friends who may be capable of giving some explanation of her traveling in a demented condition on a railroad train without proper charge. She is still at Sprague.

WAS HE LEGALLY MARRIED?—One day this week a young merchant of this city who was married about two years ago by an ex-minister of a Portland congregation happened to be reading the laws of Oregon and stumbled on the chapter relating to marriages. The person who solemnized his marriage had for years been a minister of the gospel, but had retired some time before the marriage took place and since then has not been connected with any church or congregation in the capacity of minister. Section [illegible] of chapter [illegible] of the Oregon code reads: "Marriages may be solemnized by any minister or priest of any church or congregation in the state anywhere within the state, and by any judicial officer of the state anywhere within his jurisdiction." The merchant began to doubt whether his marriage was legal and consulted one of the best lawyers in the state, who advised him to go through the ceremony again. The lawyers construction of the law is that a minister must be in charge of some congregation or church in order to legally bind a couple in marriage. To give an instance: So long as Rev. [illegible] was minister of the Baptist church here he could legally pronounce the marriage ceremony anywhere in the state, but when he left the ministry and engaged in law such legal authority ceased.

FINE MINSTREL ENTERTAINMENT.—The entertainment given by the Portland Popular minstrels for the benefit of the Hebrew Ladies' Relief society last night at Masonic hall was a most pronounced success. A very lively first part was succeeded by some remarkably clever sketches, the Portland police being exceptionally funny. When it is remembered by those who witnessed the performance last night that of the fifteen boys who took part all were under 1[illegible] years of age and only one that old, it was really a remarkable performance. After the close of the minstrel entertainment the hall was cleared for dancing and a large number of the audience took advantage of the opportunity and of the excellent music furnished to stay. The ladies of the society had prepared a bountiful supper of which the young fellows sat down after they had removed the burnt cork and it is needless to say they did full justice to the good things offered. The large hall was literally packed, many having to stand during the entire performance.

KICKED FOOTBALL WITH LIVES.—Judge W. D. Keady of Olympia writing to the secretary of the Pennsylvania association and which it is reported came too late to be read at the last meeting, says: "I find it hard to get to Portland to meet the friends from my native state. If it is intended to take in this territory I beg leave to put in application early. My son, W. D. Keady, speaker of the lower house of the Oregon legislature [illegible] of Corvallis is a native of Washington county [illegible] where I was born and raised. I was [illegible] by [illegible] and kicked football with [illegible] times. I left the old keystone in 18[illegible] published a paper in Iroquois county, Ill. several years, and the Times fourteen years in Kankakee in the same state. If I can become a member I shall be pleased to do so. You have my best wishes for prosperity, health and long life." [illegible] Mr Keady is on the list as a veteran from the keystone and other [illegible]

TWO WOMEN WANT DIVORCES.—Nettie Winset yesterday brought an action for a divorce from Edward Winset. She alleges that he struck and beat her, called her vile names and by his general treatment of her made her life burdensome. They were married in Portland May [illegible] 188[illegible] and the issue of the marriage is one child named Clarence Wilbert, aged 2 years. Plaintiff asks for the care and custody of this child and the publication of summons, as the defendant is supposed to be now in California. Rosa J Wilson wants the bonds of matrimony existing between herself and Milton Wilson dissolved on the ground of cruel treatment. They were married in Marion county June [illegible] 1880. Mrs. Wilson claims that her husband failed to support her, and in April 1884 left her unprovided for. She asks to be awarded the care of her child Walter, aged 5 years.

EXCHANGE OF NAMES.—A slight error occurred in a note published yesterday, stating that Deputy Sheriff Fell of Morrow county had taken C. W. Rychard to the penitentiary for three years. The fact is that C. W. Rychard is the deputy sheriff and that he took a fellow named McMahon to the penitentiary. Fell came to Portland with the sheriff and his prisoner and a reporter fell in with him and somehow things got slightly mixed. As any one will see at a glance the error was a trifling one, only a couple of names misplaced and it would probably never have been noticed had not Mr. Rychard remonstrated on the ground that "the boys" would have a good joke on him when he got home.

GETS A NEW TRIAL.—A little over a year ago James H. Fisk brought suit in the state circuit court against D. [illegible] Peter Danahue, Eleanor Martin, Thomas S. Martin, Edward Martin and J. D. Wilcox, to recover a commission of 10 per cent for selling some $[illegible],000 worth of land, this amounting to $60,000. The case was tried April 18th 188[illegible] in Judge Smith's court, and resulted in Fisk coming out second best. He took an appeal to the supreme court and yesterday a mandate was received reversing the decision of the lower court and ordering that Fisk be granted a new trial of the case.

TRIAL FOR DAMAGES.—The case of Karl Nordlius against C. J. Holmes, third mate of the British ship Sardinian, was on trial in the U. S. court yesterday. The plaintiff was cruelly beaten and abused on board that ship. He has already received damages from the captain and first mate. He bears evidence of the treatment he suffered in a disfigured nose said to have been smashed by Holmes with a calking mallet. It is really too bad that because the crime was committed on the high seas under the British flag a criminal action cannot be brought against the brutal officer.

WILL FILED.—Louisa C. Lewis was yesterday appointed administratrix of the estate of Louis [illegible] Lewis deceased. As the estate is valued at $5500 Mrs. Lewis was required to give a bond of $11,000. Deceased left no will. His heirs are Owen Lewis, aged 1[illegible], Herbert, aged 8, Mabel Inez, aged [illegible] years, and his widow, Louisa C. Lewis. She was appointed guardian of the children and [illegible] Jordan, F. [illegible] Jeffery and C. [illegible] Sitton appraisers of the estate. The deceased during his life time was employed as a foreman in the Willamette iron works.

ANOTHER CUT IN FREIGHTS.—There has been another cut in east bound freights from Portland, the rate now being [illegible] cents to Chicago regardless of classification, and to St. Paul and the Missouri river [illegible] cents. The only low rate to New York announced several days ago has been withdrawn. Just now very little freight is offering for the East, and the chances are that rates will be restored before the wool and salmon of Oregon and Washington is ready for shipment.

NEW BLOCK.—The occupants of the buildings owned by Henry Failing at the northwest corner of [illegible] and First streets were yesterday notified to remove as soon as possible. Mr. Failing has concluded to erect on the lot a handsome and substantial brick building. It will be necessary to commence work immediately in order to get in the foundation before the liability to interruption from high water occurs.

QUALIFICATIONS OF SCHOOL CLERKS AND DIRECTORS.—A lady subscriber at Mosier asks: Can a person hold the office of school clerk or director who is not a taxpayer and not entitled to vote in this district? This is an old question, has been asked often and has never been passed upon judicially. Best opinion is that a clerk need not be a taxpayer. A director certainly ought to be a taxpayer.

ELECTION.—At a meeting of the Young People's association of Grace M. E. church, the following officers were elected for the ensuing six months: President, Dr. R. Kelly; vice president, S. [illegible]; secretary, T. Walter London; treasurer, Miss Emma Dickenson; chorister, Edwin Miller; organist, Miss [illegible] Dickenson.

THE STAGE

THE CASINO.—Last night "Falka" received its last representation and it is a pleasant duty to chronicle the fact that every performance was an improvement upon its predecessor. "Falka" cast as it might have been would have netted larger results for the management. To-night in response to a general request "Iolanthe" will be performed for the last time this season. "Iolanthe" has met with more general approval than any other opera performed by the Thompson company and can not fail to draw a full house. For Saturday night "The Mikado" for the last time and on Sunday night "The Beggar Student" also for the last time in which Mr. Branson will by request introduce "The Fair Land of Poland." Expectation however is on tip toe with reference to the production of Strauss's chef d'oeuvre "The Merry War," more melodious than "Prince Methusalem," abounding in military marches, tableaux, magnificent music and elaborate [illegible] It will certainly be one of the events of the season.

The box sheet for the sale of seats for "The Merry War" and succeeding operas will be at M. Kircher & Thompson's book store on First street and no coupon tickets will hereafter be sold at the Casino at night, the rule being first come first served. The management have ordered 100 folding chairs for the three exits (?) [illegible] and will further improve the theater during the immediate future. The report that the present stockholders had disposed of their interest is incorrect and it is not their intention to do so.

THE EAST SIDE

Albina Water Works—The Approaching School Meeting—A Sample Agitator—General Notes

WATER FOR ALBINA.

The East Portland Water company are now estimating upon the cost of extending their mains along Fourth street into Albina and in all probability the contract for the work will be let at an early day providing sufficient patronage from the city and its citizens can be secured to justify the expenditure. The company propose to build a reservoir somewhere back of the Albina public school building, pumping from the main direct therein and supplying the city by the additional pressure thus secured. The size of this reservoir and the amount of pressure provided will depend largely upon the number of hydrants that the city shall determine upon for fire extinguishing purposes.

THE COMING SCHOOL MEETING.

Much interest is being manifested by the substantial taxpayers of this district in the special school meeting called for Monday next between the hours of 4 and 8 P. M., on which occasion the resolution to borrow money for constructing additional school buildings will be submitted to a popular vote. Sentiment appears to lean strongly toward the passage of the resolution.

Parties who have been in the habit of pasturing their stock in W. S. Ladd's field near Brooklyn bridge, East Portland, will wake up some morning and find their animals impounded by city officials.

Mrs. Sue [illegible] Keenan at the anti-coolie meeting Tuesday evening exclaimed complacently: "I am just dying for morning to come so that I can read THE OREGONIAN and see Scott slop over." Others who read it as Mrs. Keenan get THE OREGONIAN. Boycotting, like charity, should begin at home.

Tickets are now out for the second annual ball of J F Maynard Lodge No. 1[illegible] Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, at Hall & Stott's hall on April 1[illegible]. The committee in charge of the affair have made special effort to have this a select ball, consequently those who are so fortunate as to attend will have an enjoyable time.

[illegible] have been going [illegible] the past few days calling at houses and representing that they wish to have their fortunes told. Housewives should give them a wide berth. It is most likely that the real intent of their visits is to [illegible] of the [illegible] so that they may afterwards enter the houses when [illegible] is at home for purposes of plunder.

The system [illegible] at the foot of [illegible] street through sunshine and storm and patiently makes its [illegible] excites considerable [illegible] It is presumed [illegible] is working in the interests of parties who have recently petitioned the county [illegible] of ferry rates and is estimating the travel and traffic of the company as a [illegible] operation.

The Band of Hope connected with the W. C. T. U. of East Portland will give one of their excellent nickel entertainments this evening at W. [illegible] hall on Fifth street. The following programme of exercises will be presented: Recitations by Myrtle Stanton, [illegible] Cora Crusier, Dolly Lloyd, Cora Stanton, [illegible] Stiver, Maud M Twain [illegible] [illegible] entitled "Miller and Maid" and a full complement of choruses by the band. Refreshments will be served.

THE COURTS.

Judgment on the verdict in plaintiff's favor for $15 and costs in the case of George F. Hutchings and wife vs. George Hough was rendered by Judge Smith yesterday. The suit was brought to recover for labor performed.

In the case of H. W. McBride vs M. F. Culver, Mary Culver, Edward Long and others, Judge Stearns yesterday made a decree foreclosing a mortgage on the west one half of lots 5 and 6, block [illegible] in East Portland.

Yesterday in state circuit court department No. 1 the case of Lem Pang vs. Art Coot was settled and dismissed. Lang sued Art Coot on September 15, 1885 to recover $600. It seems that some time before, Lem Lang sold out his interest in the Yee Ark company for $1050 and of the purchase price received but $550. The $500 sued for was the balance due.

I. R. Dawson commenced an action in the state circuit court against Graves & Son [illegible] half of the following firms:

POLICE COURT.

Business was brisk in police court circles yesterday, as it invariably is after a holiday. Case number one was A. B. Swain who got too full for utterance. Swain said he worked on the east side thirty five miles from here, and came into town and celebrated over much. He wanted to get out so as to look after his horse and get back to work. Judge Dement told him to step out and do so. Swain thanked the magistrate and stepped. Number two was Wm. Bowlby, master at arms of the cutter Corwin. Bowlby acknowledged that he had been drunk and asked leave to go and catch his vessel at Astoria, to which place she had gone and was coaling up preparatory to a trip to San Francisco. The court informed him he could leave in time to take this [illegible] boat. Edward Purtas, who has been engaged in cutting logs for a Mr. Brown in Washington county, came to Portland Wednesday, arrayed in his shirt sleeves. He wanted to return and resume work, but having been in durance vile before, the opinion of the court was that he required about five days rest before so doing.

John McIsaacs and Roach and Frank Robertson, three fellows from Albina, crossed over to this side to have a sort of a picnic. McIsaacs got full and missed the boat and was run in. He was fined $4. Roach went to the theater and hasn't since been heard from. Robertson amused himself for a while at the Thistle saloon and from there went to George Reid's. At 2 o'clock in the morning Officer Belcher arrested him for roaming the streets in an unlawful hour. He told what is quite a decent looking [illegible] explained that he and the other two roomed together [illegible] and he was waiting [illegible] to get the key, and if [illegible] meant the ferryboat stopped on the other side, thus preventing him from getting home. Judge Dement said the chief of police had published a notice warning people without lawful business from roaming the streets after midnight. It was dangerous to be found on the streets after midnight, especially the Albina people who had been coming over here and creating trouble. He fined Robertson $10 and said he could go in two days. Policeman Belcher testified that Robertson, when arrested, was quite sober, but admitted having done little or no work in the past four months.

A man named Griffin, who was fired out of the St. Charles and then the Esmond house, swore he had not drank a drop of intoxicating liquors in six months. Officers Nash and Smith begged to differ with him, and Griffin was fined $[illegible] or two days.

John Martin, a vag, admitted that he was an opium fiend and had done nothing for two weeks. His honor informed him that he could go out and look for work at the expiration of thirty days.

Joseph Mendel was fined $20 for deliberately kicking Ah Sing, a Chinaman, in the stomach without any provocation whatever. Mendel pleaded guilty and goes to jail for twenty five days in default of the payment of the fine imposed.

A longshoreman named August Myer celebrated the day by having a free fight with Thomas Hunter, barkeeper of the City Brewery Exchange. The trouble was all brought about by Myer asking for a drink and not getting it. When arraigned Myer's plea was: "He struck me first with a club—there is the three holes in my head. I grabbed him first but did not strike him. When he hit me I got dizzy. Then I come to and threw him against the stove; that is how he got scratched." Hunter alleged that the row was commenced by Myer who knocked him down, then kicked him, called him hard names, in fact used him for a football. Myer was adjudged guilty and sent up for five days.

Frank Druck, a grocer, who every now and then gets drunk and turns things loose, was up for striking a young girl named Minnie Truer. Mrs. Druck gave evidence that her husband had been on a spree for three days, had been breaking doors and furniture and raising cain generally. Miss Truer testified that on Wednesday night Druck came up stairs with another man into the premises occupied by herself and her mother. She ordered them out, telling them they had no business there, when Druck struck her twice on the breast. In passing on the case Judge Dement said: "Druck, you have $20 up and you had better leave it here. The city has use for it."

Martin Smallden, Luke Evans and Willie Daly, three disciples of Blueskin or Jack Sheppard, were arraigned on three distinct charges of robbery. One is of standing Alvin Allard up and taking from him $77. The second information is that they entered D. C. Bogart's residence and stole a lot of jewelry, and the third accuses them of the larceny of a revolver, knife, bracelet and other trinkets from the dwelling of Louis Seagus. The trio waived examination, and were held to answer before the grand jury. It is almost unnecessary to say that none of them were able to give bail.

O. C. vs. U. S.

The Disputed Lands of the O. C. R. R. in Washington County

Lands Sold on Warranty Deeds Some Years ago now in Dispute between the R. R. Co. and the U. S. —Neighbors Jumping Neighbors Claims.

GALES CREEK, March 1[illegible], 1886.

Ninety six miles of your road south from Portland having been completed and put in running order as per contract between the Oregon Central and the United States, the same has been accepted and orders given for the issuance of land patents for each parallel to said completed section.

Such was the tenor if not the exact wording of the dispatch wired from the secretary of the interior office in Washington to the officials of the O. C. railroad at their office in Portland some years ago. A recent report of committee on forfeiture of [illegible] land grants [illegible] railroad to congress and on the strength of this decision the O. C. company at once proceeded to give bonds for deeds on all their lands sold and paid for while they so rashly declared the remainder of the accepted grant to open market subject to purchase.

VERY PATIENT.

In [illegible] the year a few patents were [illegible] to the O. C. by the interior office, but owing to the pressure of business attending their accumulating individual land proofs, attention was diverted to working out individual patents to that [illegible] and to the O. C. finally and homestead, the railroad and capital's patent titles here the [illegible] of procrastination until it [illegible] of administration brought with it a change [illegible] in the interior department that finally culminated in a decision declaring forfeit all lands that in many cases had passed not only from the O. C. company to original purchasers, but even into the hands of second and third parties by warranty deed. And while all men claim the [illegible] principal and the basis of Commissioner Sparks' [illegible] as is the third [illegible] his local appliances works that all wish [illegible] inspection of detail had been [illegible] before the all embracing decision had been promulgated. The local lands in dispute in Washington county begin on a line southwest from Forest Grove and distant from the track about eight or ten miles in townships 1 and 3 ranges 1 and [illegible]. The very entrance to that tremendous timber belt of high hill land which runs in unbroken density of forest to the [illegible] coast 150 miles away.

THE PIONEERS.

Who first came into and bought or settled claims from railroad and government in this mountainous America Schwarzwald must have had the hearts of heroes and the powers of Hercules, or they never would have ventured to attempt to redeem the rich deep soil from beneath the mighty roots of the gigantic firs, whose trunks not infrequently have a diameter of four and even six feet, while their heights run up into the hundreds and two hundred feet. All this mass of timber has had to be slashed and rooted out, hauled together and burned before the first crop can be sown or planted, [illegible] and tedious process the old graybeards [illegible]. Through months they and their then young families have [illegible] wild game and wild roots any wonder one may have felt at the surprising development of the country west of the Mississippi passes away and we involuntarily exclaim: There were giants in those days. But their followers the men who have settled here in the last ten or twelve years and have firmly settled on railroad land are in every way worthy to share in the splendid fame of the old pioneers. [illegible] to be sure they came in the comparatively easy [illegible] of the immigrant car, but when landed here with little else besides hope and muscle, their [illegible] and grim resolution to make a new start in life, a start that their age and their growing families declared must be permanent in its outcome. Further west they could not go and [illegible] fate be whatever it might, they with a trust in God and in the strength of their muscles set to work with a will and have now after ten or twelve years hard and unassisted [illegible] labor succeeded in redeeming twelve, fifteen or twenty cases twenty acres for cultivation out of the mighty forest that still seems unbroken to the casual passer by. As I said nearly all these later settlers have taken up railroad land for which by [illegible] for others they have succeeded in paying in many cases in whole, for which they hold bond for deed, and in all cases all but one or two payments; when just as they were congratulating themselves on being out of the woods comes on them like a flash of lightning a decision that says that the sweat of their brow, their houses and their homes have all been wrought for nothing, and that their hard won land is subject to the entry of Tom, Dick or Harry, who having a few dollars to spare are ready to speculate on the [illegible] misfortunes.

WHY NOT HOMESTEAD.

Says some sapient reader, because in many cases they have already exercised that right, [illegible] of the mountains [illegible] and in others here in mountain sides [illegible] fit for cultivation but affording water for their cultivated lands, and in other cases they can but at best enter only a fraction of the land sold them by railroads, as they not infrequently [illegible] and do not join, and therefore cannot be entered by any one individual, according to the final rulings of the interior department.

Others again having bought improved railroad lands from second purchasers on warranty deed have mortgaged the same for the sake of making greater improvements. These improvements are now made over all the farms of two or as in some cases two hundred and sixty acres of railroad land but 160 is all they can secure by entry. The rest is at the mercy of him who likes to risk jumping it. I say risk for many who have put in their best years into the redemption of the soil they thought their own are apt to resent in a practical way any infringements on their manorial rights, and persuasive would be the tongue having the ability to make them see that their threatened actions would be morally wrong. As yet no overt act has been committed on any side. Those who could possibly do so secured themselves or those to whom they sold lands through at considerable loss of time and money; yet many floaters are looking around for chances for a spec, and 'tis from them that those situated so that they can not themselves file on their railroad land fear trouble. But all pray that a final decision will soon be arrived at and all serious trouble be averted. What the outcome will be no man foreseeth but it must be apparent to all just feeling minds that

A RELIEF MEASURE

Is at once and imperatively demanded for the relief of as brave, hard working, honest a class of toilers as ever helped to form the unconquerable pioneer yeomanry of this great progressive and free republic.

Look to it you republicans! Look to it you democrats! See to it that the [illegible] spirit of partyism does not cause you to perpetuate a wrong upon a class who by their quiet toiling in the deep isolation of almost impenetrable forests are slowly but surely developing that greatness of your country's commercial worth which you both so proudly declare from the stump and the platform is unequaled in nations past and not to be excelled by any of the present or of time to come. Look to it gentlemen! See that while time is lavishly expended in arguing on obsolete technicalities in your senate and in your congress that it is not wilfully denied to the relief of those whom you delight to speak of as your constituents. CONCERNING CREAMERIES

SYRACUSE, Or., March [illegible]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I see by articles in THE OREGONIAN and other valley papers that the creamery business is receiving a good deal of attention just now. Some places seem anxious to have creameries started in their midst and are even ready to raise a subsidy for any one with the necessary experience. For the benefit of those in search of information on this subject, I wish to say that a creamery company has been organized at this place with a practical creamery man at its head. Any one in want of information on this subject can receive the same by writing to the Syracuse Creamery company, Syracuse, Polk county, Oregon. We believe the more creameries started [illegible] better it will be for both the factories and farmers, but we feel willing and anxious to give all the help we can to those just starting. M.

FROM NORTH YAKIMA.

Hegira to Ellensburg—City Government Organized—Drowning—Railroad Notes

NORTH YAKIMA, W. T. March 1[illegible].

Owen Sulten, a young man about 2[illegible] years old, was drowned last Sunday afternoon in the Yakima river, just below the first railroad crossing. He with another man was engaged in fording horses across the river and losing his position on the horse he was riding he caught hold of the bridle which prevented the horse from swimming ashore, but instead he turned down stream, and on his rider was compelled to let go his hold, and being unable to swim, immediately disappeared. His companion had just reached shore, but was unable to reach him before he sank. The unfortunate man was a resident of Selah valley, and has a sister living in the vicinity but no other immediate relatives. His body has not been recovered though diligent search is being made for it.

Last Saturday night a large tree, brought down the river by a sudden rise of water, knocked two bents out of the false bridge that is being constructed at the third crossing, about seven miles below Ellensburg. The damage was soon repaired, but it will be a week or more before the remainder of the tracklaying will be resumed. Sufficient rails and ties are in readiness, however, to complete the road to Ellensburg and by the 1st of April the object may be accomplished. The permanent bridge at the first crossing, which will consist of three iron [illegible] that was brought several years ago to span the Snake river at [illegible], is being put up by Hoffman & Bates of Portland, and the same firm have the contract for [illegible] and [illegible] third crossings, the material for which is being stored at this place.

Rumor says that Nelson Bennett has the contract for grading the [illegible] from Ellensburg to the [illegible] which it is [illegible] will not [illegible] dominate [illegible] work during the [illegible]

The city government [illegible] the city attorney and marshal elected, and an ordinance passed imposing a heavy fine for [illegible] tenants [illegible] in the streets, where [illegible] any hitching posts [illegible] high license [illegible] dogs, though [illegible] usual [illegible] are being [illegible] out for the [illegible]

Meantime [illegible] instantly [illegible] lares et penates are being shipped to Ellensburg. Several business firms are preparing to follow and matters generally are assuming the condition and phase of antebellum times in the old town. But after we have settled down to material facts and actual circumstances and the boom fever has entirely subsided, we shall come to realize and appreciate real steady though slow growth and prosperity, and which we shall find to be the most conducive to our moral and physical welfare.

Two thousand six hundred sheep, filling sixteen cars, were shipped from here for Butte, Mont., last Sunday. A shipment of horses will soon follow.

CARL SCHURZ

A correspondent at [illegible] Washington city writes the following to THE OREGONIAN. It is the opinion he held some years ago of Carl Schurz from a Prussian officer:

I first met Carl Schurz back in the thirties, at Bohn. He was a bright, restless, ambitious but essentially a [illegible] young fellow, the son of an honest [illegible] kept a sort of dance hall full of pretty yellow-haired girls who dancing with the wild young students until midnight, were not too prudish to entertain them till morning, as did Daniel's [illegible] Gretchen [illegible] with her lover read no more. [illegible] this [illegible] the moral [illegible] of the father affect the social standing of the son among his fellow students. Not at all. We [illegible] Carl without any comparison with his father only valued him in fact for his own high qualities and they were many. We lost sight of him after the fusion of '48 and the next I heard of him was when in 1849 soon after the Schleswig Holstein affair. I too on account of a misunderstanding with the Iron Prince found it convenient to visit this home of refuge to all political malcontents from Europe. Here I found Carl in full blossom as a political leader.

Have you followed his career since our advent here, [illegible] think of him as a politician.

Being [illegible] of his as well as [illegible] I naturally have watched his somewhat eccentric political life since my arrival in this free land. Well I find him still the same Carl Schurz I knew in Bohn so long ago—such lively keen argument, visionary in desire, ambitious, believing thoroughly in the soundness of all his own theories and independent enough to quarrel with every one sooner than yield to other opinions than his own. In fact Carl Schurz the student, brilliant and conceited, was but the prototype of Carl Schurz the politician, equally brilliant, equally conceited and willing to sacrifice party and friendship rather than abandon his telemachian ideas of what government ought to be. GLADSTONE'S CABINET TROUBLES

A D[illegible] in the House of Commons—The Old Franco German Feud—Egypt Flooded with Counterfeit Coin

LONDON, March 18.—Mr O'Brien presiding over a meeting of 400 Irishmen at St George's hall, Bradford last evening, made a speech in which he said Ireland's prospects were never bright[illegible] [illegible] now, and it would not be the fault of the [illegible] ites if the most promising chance of effecting the reconciliation of two people should wantonly and wickedly be sacrificed.

Attorney-General Russell was ban[illegible] [illegible] don last evening by some of his constituents. In an address he said that English [illegible] sured that Mr Gladstone's Irish scheme [illegible] just and equitable and would [illegible] unity and strengthen the best interests [illegible] empire. Coercion he said had failed [illegible] therefore be wise to give Ireland [illegible] rule. If Mr Chamberlain should resign his seat in the cabinet the country would accept the [illegible] nation. There was no excuse for deserting the government short of very grave reasons.

Mr McCarthy speaking at [illegible] said: The nationalists wished to welcome the Orangemen because Ireland should be [illegible] in which the Irish should sink all difference of opinion.

THE CABINET CRISIS.

LONDON, March 18.—Mr Chamberlain [illegible] friend that Gladstone's Irish proposals would involve so complete separation that it was impossible to give any guarantee to landlords, and that unless a method was found to greatly reduce the amount of the proposed payment he (Chamberlain) would not remain in the cabinet. Chamberlain conferred long and earnestly with Trevelyan in the house of lords this [illegible] and afterward conferred privately with [illegible] for nearly an hour. The circumstance was much commented on by [illegible]. Meanwhile the [illegible]. Neither Gladstone nor Chamberlain [illegible] disposed to yield.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON CITY.

[Correspondence of The Oregonian.]

WASHINGTON, March 11.

The committee on Pacific railroads have made the following report on the bill to create the Spokane & Coeur d'Alene railway company:

The company propose to build a railroad from Spokane Falls to the Coeur d'Alene mining region in Idaho. They have no power to build that portion of the road in Idaho, and as there is no law in Idaho under which a railroad company can be incorporated they are compelled to come before congress for such authority. The company ask no help from either of the territories or the United States. They simply ask the privilege of building the railroad at their own risk, under the sanction of law, so that when built they can be protected in their rights. Your committee are of the opinion that the privilege should be granted.

Senator Dolph has prepared a measure to appropriate $[illegible],000 to pay the Indian depredation claims which have been filed and investigated under the direction of the secretary of the interior and reported to congress.

The senator has also asked the committee on military affairs to recommend an appropriation of $[illegible],000 to pay the expenses of a military expedition for the exploration of Alaska.

The bill prepared by Hermann to establish an additional land district in Oregon provides that so much of the lands subject to sale under the laws at Lakeview, La Grande and The Dalles land districts as is contained in the following [illegible] shall constitute a new land district to be called the Harney land district, bounded as follows: Commencing at Snake river on the township line between townships 12 and [illegible] [illegible] second standard parallel [illegible] west to [illegible] corner of township [illegible] south [illegible] Willamette meridian, thence south on the line between townships [illegible] south [illegible] east of Willamette meridian to the [illegible] standard parallel south, thence on said standard parallel line east to the boundary line [illegible] state, thence north on said boundary line to the place of beginning.

It also provides for the appointment of a register and receiver for the district. The committee [illegible] have not yet considered the matter.

In the senate committee on Indian affairs there [illegible] measure restoring to the public domain [illegible] portion of the Siletz Indian reservation. It will be remembered that the [illegible] memorialized congress to throw open [illegible] the northern portion of the reservation [illegible] bill is the result of the [illegible] prepared. It directs that the [illegible] of the reservation shall [illegible] the coast where the Siletz river enters [illegible] and on the south bank thereof [illegible] mark and running thence east [illegible] the easter[illegible] reservation.

The whole of the area of the reservation lying [illegible] of the line and all the [illegible] five townships is restored to the public domain and made subject to settlement [illegible] consent [illegible] that they be paid [illegible] the improvements made thereon.

It will be of interest to the legal profession to [illegible] that the judiciary committee [illegible] in the senate so that the [illegible] of the supreme court [illegible] territory except Washington [illegible] where the value of the matter in dispute exclusive of costs exceeds $1000 may be reviewed [illegible] in the supreme court upon [illegible] in the same manner and under the same regulations as final judgments and decrees of a circuit court. In Washington the value of the matter in dispute must exceed $2,000. And any final judgment or decree of the supreme court of any territory in any cause wherein the constitution or [illegible] or treaty of the United States is brought in question may be reviewed in like manner.

The senate committee on public lands have agreed to a favorable report on a measure to provide for taxation of railroad grant lands. Congress for several years has considered this matter.

The committee now say that the injustice of giving to large corporations privilege of exemption from taxation not enjoyed by the citizen has been [illegible] a grievous wrong by the communities which have seriously felt the hardship. Early the corporations refused to pay taxes and the supreme court sustained them on the ground that the United States had a lien on the land for the costs of survey, etc. The object of the committee has been to remove all the objections relied upon in the supreme court for its decision exempting these lands [illegible] taxation so that the same should be subject [illegible] the same as the lands of individuals in the [illegible] the laws of the state and territories where the lands are located.

[illegible] providing that no railroad lands granted by congress shall be exempt [illegible] taxation on account of the lien of the United States upon the same for costs of survey, conveyancing [illegible].

The committee on pensions recommend that the [illegible] Col James Waters be increased from $[illegible] a month. In his petition presented by Mr [illegible] he says that he served in the war of 18[illegible], emigrated to Oregon in 18[illegible], served five years in the regular army, served six months in the Florida war, and served in the Indian war in Oregon [illegible] colonel. He is 90 years old and helpless. The committee are unanimously of the opinion that his pension should be increased to such a sum as would give this aged and honorable veteran at least a comfortable support during the balance of his few remaining days that he may linger on the [illegible] of time.

Mr Hermann has presented to the committee on [illegible] the following relief bills:

To pay the administrator of Richard Beddy, of Lake county, $10,000 for depredations committed by the Modocs. Also a similar claim of Mrs Kate [illegible]ratton of Lake county, late widow of Nicholas [illegible], for $7,2[illegible].

To pay Abial Morrison of Oregon $3,492 for property destroyed by hostile Indians in Washington in 18[illegible].

Senator Dolph has succeeded in getting a favorable recommendation from the committee on commerce on his bill to prevent the obstruction of navigable waters and to protect public works against trespass or injury. Its provisions have already been given in this correspondence with the exception of an important amendment proposed by the committee providing that it shall not be lawful hereafter to commence the construction of any bridge, causeway, or other works, over or in any port, road, roadstead, harbor or navigable rivers or other waters under any act of a state legislature until the location and plan of such bridge have been submitted to and approved by the secretary of war, or to interfere with the channel of any river without a like consent.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 24 hours: [illegible] ctls wheat, 458 bbls flour, 1580 ctls oats, 60 ctls bran, 356 sks potatoes, 637 lbs hides, 6050 lbs hops, 42 bxs fruit, 111 cs egg, 3 cs butter, 1 cattle. Also 1010 ctls wheat, 300 ctls oats, 3145 lbs wool, 380 lbs hides from the eastern section.

FREIGHTS—The Scottish Wizard came in Sunday under prior charter. No sailings in the week. [illegible] vessels are at bar anchorage bound out. On spot the Chesebrough and the Henry Villard, large wood, obtained U K business, the first at 38s 9d and the latter probably at the same figure. Iron may be nominally quoted 41s 3d with none at hand. But one or two charters to arrive are spoken of and they at terms reserved. The market is quiet with next to no demand. Present weather should bring in a number of the fleet headed this way.

REGISTERED TONNAGE STATEMENT.

In port—Finished with grain		[illegible]
	Loading or to load	10[illegible]
	Wanting disengaged	[illegible]
On way—Due March		[illegible]
	Due later on	[illegible]

WHEAT—Arrivals for the week were [illegible] valley and [illegible] tons Walla Walla, a total of [illegible] tons against [illegible] tons the preceding week and [illegible] valley and [illegible] tons Walla Walla for the week ending March 1[illegible] last year. For the past week there has been a decrease in Walla Walla arrivals, while more of that grade came down for San Francisco. The last steamer carried out 700 tons. Several of the grain fleet cleared but the number in loading berth here remains about the same because of new spot business. From this on foreign shipments will be of a dragging character with but a few vessels probably in loading berth at one time. Until near the close the telegraph [illegible] noted steadily improving markets. [illegible] will [illegible] uncertain. The chances for [illegible] change at the [illegible] are hidden [illegible] nothing more than temporary [illegible]. English buyers have taken hold very freely of [illegible] are probably resting for a time with [illegible] effect upon the market if not upon prices. We have London mail dates to [illegible] from [illegible] it is gathered that the [illegible] Indian wheat on passage was 100,000 [illegible] 400,000 at the turn of the year. British stocks of wheat and flour were being reduced and there were more buyers for future delivery. No. [illegible] Calcutta for April-June shipment [illegible] against 30s 6d. Just arrived California to arrive June-July sold at 3[illegible]s, the same as off coast. An English writer thinks America's visible supply will be wanted too much at home to keep prices down and that supplies from Russia when navigation opens will surprise everybody by their scarcity. So great is the scarcity in some parts of the interior of Russia that wheat is said to have been repurchased at the seaboard for return shipment inland. Australia promises little and India is now shipping less than 500,000 bushels per week. On the other hand it is stated there is lack of confidence [illegible] that in the United Kingdom there is much more home grown wheat than supposed, liberal stocks on hand, an idea that India can and will make up any deficiency, a feeling that America holds more wheat than credited, lack of usual demand from France and Germany. All these last statements are open to attack, for it is thought France will have to buy, that the India idea is not a good one, and that British stocks will be [illegible] reduced. The balance seems to be in favor of slow improvement in prices. The reduction in the American visible last week was below expectations and has lately been but one-half to two-thirds that expected. The quantity afloat is held up by Pacific Coast shipments which are now passing their highest point. A deal has been made in New York March and May wheat by the Woerishoffer crowd who are now on the bull side. San Francisco shippers have taken up half a dozen vessels, not quite enough to offset the number cleared. This market develops nothing new. With us there is a rather quiet business, sellers not being numerous and buyers in no need at the moment. What proportion of the near at hand tonnage there is chartered ahead is not generally known, hence one cannot speak understandingly of needs in the near future. It is known that a number of vessels are taken for April arrival, which are to load in May. Very light needs are anticipated before May, so that shippers have yet considerable time to buy.

This market has received considerable benefit from recent foreign advances, more than anticipated, inasmuch as freights failed to take the portion expected. Firmness of wheat holders when affairs are tended their way led to this condition. They have slowly advanced pretensions and are now showing a determination to obtain all the shipping market will stand. In the week sales of the two grades have been reported at $1 1[illegible]@1 14 and $1 [illegible]@1 [illegible] [illegible] situation. Both grades are firmly held, valley buyers being favored by low freights which practically furnish an increased profit in the handling of the grade. We do not find anything that would justify higher figures being quoted, although [illegible] round lots of valley would probably bring $1 [illegible]. In the interior valley buyers have paid $1 [illegible] and a shade better for small parcels, while Walla Walla holders obtained [illegible] the extreme.

The following is a comparative statement of deliveries from English farmers, imports into the United Kingdom and quantities afloat for the weeks ended as below:

FLOUR—Receipts for the week 2566 bbls valley and 2[illegible]7 bbls Walla Walla, a decrease from the preceding week. The Adelaide Mary cleared for Liverpool with 9967 bbls, but small shipments being made to San Francisco. The local agency of the Salem Flouring Mills Co is now in charge of Mr George Shiel, well known in the trade. The market rules very quiet and is wholly without new interest. Demands run light and prices are not improved. Standards quoted $3 75 net, other brands $3 25@3 50.

MILLSTUFF—Only a seasonable request, and with the exception of chop stocks are ample. Shorts are weak and the inside figure is lowered. Quote jobbing values: Bran, $13@14, chop $18@20, shorts, $15@17, middlings, $18@20. Oil meal, $32 50 per ton.

OATS—San Francisco marks a slight improvement for the choicer grades, especially milling. Ordinary qualities are rather weak and sell slowly. With us receipts are fair and not so much for through account. Shipments are even and not free. Dealers have stocks which cost them 36@39c, the shipping range for best feed being 3[illegible]@38c. These figures [illegible] over last business and may be given as quotations. The common to poor grades are in neglect.

POTATOES—Better feeling with prices slightly advanced over last week because of an improved shipping market. Buyers here are not active, knowing that increased shipments would weaken the selling market. Paying prices are [illegible]c for [illegible], [illegible]c for Peerless and [illegible]0c for Burbanks per bushel.

ONIONS—Steady with fair trade doing. Dealers pay [illegible] and sell [illegible]. Shipments fair.

APPLES—Receipts and stocks light, the choicest qualities readily commanding 85c@$1 against 60@[illegible] for common.

TROPICAL FRUITS—Very fair call but prices [illegible]. Oranges [illegible] at $2 10, $[illegible] and $[illegible] for Riverside and navel. Lemons [illegible] $[illegible] and $[illegible] for California and Sicily.

VEGETABLES—California arrivals free and sell [illegible]. Cabbage [illegible], celery 80c, cauliflower $1 [illegible], asparagus [illegible].

BUTTER—California roll firmer at [illegible]c, choice [illegible] xtra choice local firm at [illegible]. California is shipping eastward.

POULTRY—Quiet throughout. Chickens sell [illegible] at $[illegible]@6 00. Ducks slow at $5@6, geese [illegible], turkeys quoted 10@1[illegible]c.

EGGS—Large sales early in the week at 10@11c [illegible] stocks were greatly reduced. Buyers sent [illegible] purchases [illegible] every direction. Toward the [illegible] receipts fell away and the market presents a [illegible] tone, one dealer holding for 15c as early as [illegible] day. Quote today 11@12½c with most [illegible] the extreme.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Government bonds were moderately active and weak, especially coupon 4s. The coal stocks were the feature of to-day's stock market. They contributed nearly 46 per cent of the day's business and were the only active stocks that developed decided weakness. The whole market however was irregular and at times feverish, especially in early dealings. Transcontinental matters and railroad strikes in the west and southwest had no appreciable effect upon prices, as no news of importance was received. Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Erie Common, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, Northern Pacific Preferred, St Paul & Duluth, Texas & Pacific, Union Pacific and Western Union are all a fraction higher, while the rest of the active list show small declines. The market was decidedly irregular at the close, being weak for coal stocks and firm for other active shares.

The Mail and Express says: Mining shares were dull and strong. Homestake 7[illegible]c, Hale & Norcross $2 40, Alice $1 60, Leadville 2[illegible], [illegible] 14.

Spring Medicine
Everybody needs and should take a good spring medicine for two reasons:
1st. The body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season.
2d. The impurities which have accumulated in the blood should be expelled and the system given tone and strength, before the prostrating effects of warm weather are felt.
Hood's Sarsaparilla
Is the best spring medicine. It purifies the blood. It sharpens the appetite. It tones the digestion. It overcomes debility. It builds up the whole system. Try it this spring.
"Hood's Sarsaparilla has been used with perfect success in our family for canker in the stomach and impure blood. My little one is entirely cured, and we shall continue its use as a family medicine." MRS F E BURTON, Somerville, Mass.
Purify the Blood
"I have been troubled with scrofulous humor and sores breaking out all over my body for the last fifteen years. I have taken four bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has entirely cured me. I recommend it very highly to any one troubled with scrofula or any blood disease." HENRY BIGGS, 1819 Campbell street, Kansas City, M[illegible].

For seven years I suffered with a cancer on my face. Eight months ago a friend recommended the use of Swift's Specific, and I determined to make an effort to procure it. It [illegible] successful, and I began its use. The influence of the medicine at first was to somewhat aggravate the sore; but soon the inflammation was allayed and I began to improve after the first few bottles. My general health has greatly improved. I am stronger and am able to do any kind of work. The [illegible] began to decrease and the ulcer to heal until there is not a vestige of it left—only a little scar marks the place. MRS. JOICIE A. McDONALD.
Atlanta Ga., August 11, 1885.
I have had a cancer on my face for some years extending from one cheek bone across the nose to the other. It has given me a great deal of pain, at times burning and itching to such an extent that it was almost unbearable. I commenced using Swift's Specific in May 1885, and have used eight bottles. It has given the greatest relief by removing the inflammation and restoring my general health. W. BARNES.
